Remarks

Amendments to the Specification

Applicants have revised the specification to update the priority data and to correct typographical errors. On page 8, lines 9-17, the specification has been amended to correct the sequence for human oxyntomodulin (OXM) (page 8, lines 14-17), which has an Arg and not a Lys residue at position 33. The corrected sequence has been renamed SEQ ID NO: 9 in the specification and is included in the corrected version of the Sequence Listing. The specification has also been amended to state that the bovine OXM sequence is not the same as the human, rat and hamster sequences. The specification has also been amended on page 26, lines 24-25, to state that the OXM used in the experiments was not human OXM.

None of these amendments constitute new matter. Both the correct sequence for human oxyntomodulin and the relationships between bovine, human, rat and hamster oxyntomodulin sequences were known prior to filing of this application. Enclosed are copies of the Swiss-Prot database entries for human, bovine, rat and hamster OXM to prove the sequences were known.
